Care & Use

Travel Kadai

How to use your Travel Kadai

1. Fill the bowl with enough Kadai Beads to cover the bottom evenly. This ensures your Firebowl will retain the heat for longer, raise the level of charcoal closer to the grill and insulates some of the heat to help prevent burns on the ground underneath your Kadai.

2. Make sure your Firepit is on a level surface before lighting.

3. If you are using your Kadai as a barbecue:

* We recommend using lumpwood charcoal or charcoal briquettes.

* Surround firelighters with charcoal and light.

* The Kadai should be heated up and the fuel kept red hot for at least 30 minutes prior to cooking.

* Do NOT cook before the fuel is grey/white in colour.

* Once you have finished cooking you can continue using your Kadai as a fire bowl by lifting off the grill with the tongs provided and adding small pieces of wood to get the fire going- it might smoke a little until the flames take hold.

4. If you are using your Kadai as a fire bowl:

* Using dry wood is best- the dryer the wood the less smoke it will produce.

* Start a fire with kindling and firelighters, then add larger logs.

Care & Use

Care and maintenance of your Travel Kadai

- * Your Firepit will take on a natural rust, this is part of the character of the bowl.
- * Periodically use wire wool on the bowl, stand and tongs to remove any loose rust.
- * Regular vegetable oiling of the bowl will keep it in good condition.
- * The grill is pre-coated with cooking oil that has been heated to cure it (similar to a wok) but this will burn off during the first use.
- * After use it is advisable to clean the grill with a wire brush and hot soapy water, dry with a cloth, coat with cooking oil and then store in a dry place.
- * All of this can be achieved with the Kadai Care Kit - sold separately.
- * We recommend that your Firepit is stored undercover during the winter.

The Firebowl and accessories will be hot when used, please ensure that these items have cooled down completely before placing in the duffle bag.
